ORDER

We are still reviewing the decision. At first glance, this opinion raises serious concerns about our protections from foreign election interference and the theft of private property to advance the interests of our enemies. At a time when the Trump administration and Republican leaders in Congress are ignoring warnings from the president's own intelligence officials about foreign interference in the 2020 election, this should be of concern to anyone who cares about our democracy and the sanctity of our elections.

Plaintiff, the United States of America, acting by and through the Consumer Protection Division of the Federal Trade Commission, brings this Complaint for Civil Penalties, Injunction, and Other Relief against Defendant, Facebook, Inc. ("Facebook").

Through its service, Facebook collects and maintains vast amounts of consumer information. As of 2018, Facebook had more than 2.2 billion monthly active users worldwide. Over one hundred million Americans use Facebook every day to share personal information, such as their real name, date of birth, hometown, career city, employer, relationship status, and spouse's name, as well as sensitive personal information, such as political views, sexual orientation, photos of minor children, and membership in both national and other support groups. Users can also provide information about themselves by indicating that they "like" public Facebook pages. Research suggests that a user's "like" of public Facebook pages can be used to accurately predict that user's personality traits, sometimes better than the user's own friends and family. In addition, Facebook users may install and use applications ("apps") developed by third parties ("third party developers") that allow the users to share information with their Facebook Friends.

Facebook's, even if those Affected Friends had not themselves installed the app. Affected Friends could only avoid this sharing by finding and opting out of its via settings on Facebook's Applications page, which was located on Facebook's website past multiple applications, multiple tabs, and Facebook's Privacy Settings page. Third party developers that received user and Affected Friend information could use that information to enhance the in-app experience or target advertising to App Users and their Affected Friends. In the wrong hands, user and Affected Friend data could be used for identity theft, phishing, fraud, and other harmful purposes.

6. In 2012, after an FTC investigation, Facebook settled obligations that its practice of sharing Affected Friends' data with third party developers of apps was deceptive. The resulting Consent Decree, among other things, prohibited Facebook from discriminating. Facebook announced that it would stop allowing third party developers to collect data about Affected Friends. Facebook also told third party developers that existing apps could only continue to collect Affected Friend data for one year, or until April 2015. But, after April 2015, Facebook had private arrangements with dozens of developers, referred to as "Whitelisted Developers," that allowed those developers to continue to collect the data of Affected Friends, with some of those arrangements lasting until June 2018.

9. At least tens of millions of American users relied on Facebook's deceptive privacy settings and statements to restrict the sharing of their information to their Facebook Friends, when, in fact, third party developers could access and collect their data through their Friends' use of third party developers' apps. Facebook knew or should have known that its conduct violated the 2012 Order because it was engaging in the very same conduct that the

 We need to agree the line to take in the presentation next week with regards to the origin of the data we have analysed.

We have generated some interesting findings that we can share in the presentation, but we are unclear to be asked where the data came from. Can we declare that we have analysed UKIP membership and do you have some insights from the UKIP data that you can start to share? When are we getting the rest of the data?

I will be on a plane during the House of Lords presentation, so please can you plan to attend with Brittany (and possibly also me). We are not yet sure whether many will be required on Thursday evening. We need to start preparing Brittany's notes, which will involve working with some of the insights that have been able to be given from the UKIP membership data. Can you lead on this please and coordinate a call with Brittany and David tomorrow?

cc - Brittany needs a brief on how to field a variety of questions about CA and our methodology, but also DCL. Rest of the DCL, Debbie etc... Can you please work with Hain, and get input from Alexander, and produce some time to take notes?

My screen-test for @starwars w/ Harrison on the 1st day I ever met him. Neither 1 of us had read the script at this point, only this 1 scene. I asked George what kind of movie it was-"Let's just do it, we'll talk about that later" We never did talk about it later-we just did it. twitter.com/carlquintanilla...
